Department of Women's Studies

*WMST/LGBT Undergraduate E-News
Fall 2016, Issue 36, November 4, 2016*

Greetings!

Miss us last Friday? Sorry for the skipped week as we make some adjustments. Starting next week you should expect to get the news on Wednesdays, rather than Fridays. But aside from the day of the week, the format is the same.

This issue includes info on upcoming events in the department's "Next Steps with your WMST/LGBT Credentials" series. Join us on Monday, November 14, to talk career possibilities with Women's Studies alum, Samantha Erskine '99. And make a note that the evening of Tuesday, November 28, the department will host a Salary Negotiation Workshop; check next week's e-newsletter for info on the workshop.

From Triota, the women's studies honor society, we have two requests: 1) Nominate an instructor, mentor, advisor, teaching assistant for recognition at their Celebration of Feminism. Nominations due by November 11. 2) Support their fundraiser at Jason's Deli on November 17. RSVP by November 14.

In the Spotlight this week is Shyra Stevens, a senior Black Women's Studies minor, who talked to us about her undergraduate teaching assistantship as well as her summer study abroad and the path that let her to the University of Maryland.

If you are seeking an internship for Spring 2017, a number of non-profits will be on campus to interview on November 14 and 17. See below for information on which organizations are participating and how to apply for one (or more) of the internships. Applications due: November 8.

And Beyond the Classroom Living-Learning Program is taking applications now for Spring 2017 enrollment.

As usual, the Career Center corner includes upcoming events and additional internship and job opportunities.

Enjoy this fall weather and we will be back with another issue mid-week next week.

Luce Artist Talk: Roxana Geffen Saturday, November 5

Luce Artist Talks, a partnership between the Smithsonian American Art Museum's Luce Foundation Center and CulturalDC, feature local artists in the visual and performing arts. Each month, artists share their artistic process and recent projects while highlighting the artists and artworks in the museum's collection that inspire them. Roxana Geffen's art reflects her exploration of domestic life and family systems. Starting off as a painter, her art now includes collage, installations and photography - a reflection of the chaotic world of parenting. She will discuss her inspirations and how her children's interest in the digital world has affected her art.

LOCATION: Smithsonian American Art Museum, 8th & G Streets NW, Washington, DC
TIME: Saturday, November 5, 1:30 pm

National Museum of Women in the Arts: Community Day Sunday, November 6

The first Sunday of each month is Community Day at NMWA which means FREE admission to the museum! Take this opportunity to explore the permanent collection or the current exhibitions:

- In NO MAN'S LAND: Women Artists from the Rubell Family Collection, 37 contemporary artists from 15 countries explore the physical process of making and images of the female body. Many artists in the exhibition use labor-intensive techniques to alter conventional notions of "women's work" and handcraft. Some sculpt or paint semi-abstract shapes that reference the body obliquely, while others depict the female form directly, forcefully reclaiming its visualization and interpretation.

- In Wanderer/ Wonderer: Pop-Ups by Colette Fu, the artist explores immense, sculptural pop-up books combining images and elements of fairy tales and folklore.

LOCATION: National Museum of Women in the Arts, 1250 New York Avenue NW, Washington, DC
SUNDAY HOURS: 12:00-5:00 pm

Jacquelyn Campbell, "Intimate Partner Violence as a Public Health Problem"

Wednesday, November 9

Join the Department of Family Science for a special Grand Rounds lecture by Jacquelyn Campbell, PhD, RN, Anna D. Wolf Chair and Professor in the Johns Hopkins University School of Nursing with a joint appointment in the Bloomberg School of Public Health and National Program Director of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Nurse Faculty Scholars program. Dr. Campbell will give a talk titled "Intimate Partner Violence as a Public Health Problem: Healing from Trauma as Secondary Prevention."

Dr. Campbell has been conducting advocacy policy work and research on violence against women since 1980, publishing more than 250 articles and seven books. She has been the principal investigator on 13 major federal research grants on domestic violence and health outcomes and has worked with the Department of Health and Human Services, the Centers for Disease Control, the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, the National Institutes of Health, the World Health Organization, United States Agency for International Development, and many other governmental and nongovernmental agencies to improve the health care response to abused women and other victims of trauma. An elected member of the National Academy of Medicine (formerly Institute of Medicine) (IOM/NAM) and the American Academy of Nursing, Dr. Campbell is also on the Board of Directors of Futures Without Violence, was Co-Chair of the IOM/NAM Global Violence Prevention Forum and has been on the board of four community domestic violence programs, including the House of Ruth Maryland.

The Public Health Grand Rounds lecture series, launched in 2011, hosts distinguished public health leaders to speak on current topics and trends in public health research and practice. Community members and public health practitioners are invited to join University of Maryland students, faculty and staff for these dynamic and educational talks.

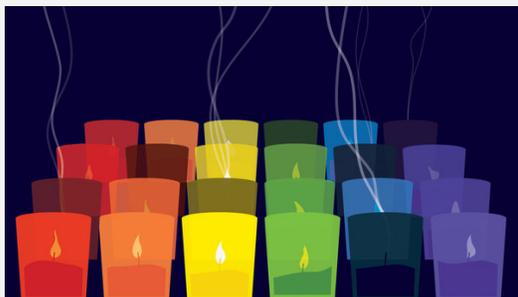

For more information, contact: Nacie Grigsby at ngrigsby@umd.edu or (301) 405-1377.

LOCATION: Friedgen Family Student Lounge, Room 2236, School of Public Health (SPH)

TIME: Wednesday, November 9, 2:00-3:30 pm. A reception and question-and-answer session will follow the talk.

Wall Street Journal Reports Higher Salaries for Gender Studies Majors

Worried that a degree in Women's Studies may not be lucrative post-graduation? Concerned if employers will value your work in LGBT Studies? On Tuesday, October 25, The Wall Street Journal reported higher starting salaries for many 2015 liberal arts graduates as companies sought out humanities students because of their strong communication skills and "comfort in multicultural environments." Gender Studies was one of the fields that had the greatest increase in salaries for 2015. "Degree holders in area studies-majors like Latin American Studies and Gender Studies-logged the largest gains in full-time employment and pay, with average starting salaries rising 26% to $43,524 for the class of 2015, compared with the previous year's graduates." These results may not be a conclusive predictor for future market trends, but this is still an exciting prospect for students (and parents of those students) in many humanities fields.

Brought to You by WMST Alum Samantha Erksine, '99 Unlocking Your Potential, Shaping Your Future, and Leading with Purpose through Nonprofit Careers -- Monday, November 14

Samantha E. Erksine, WMST/Psychology B.A. 1999, is the Founder and President of the Imelda Foundation, a leadership development organization for girls of color.

Prior to founding the Imelda Foundation, Samantha was the Senior Director of Development at the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc. (LDF), America's premier legal organization fighting for racial justice. She was previously the Director of Development at the Council of Urban Professionals (CUP), which works to seek racial, ethnic, and gender parity in the highest leadership positions in finance, law, media & entertainment, technology, and the public sector. Prior to CUP, Samantha held increasingly senior roles at other leading New York City-based organizations, including the National Latina Institute for Reproductive Health, the Applied Research Center (a racial justice think tank recently re-branded as Race Forward), and Legal Momentum (formerly the NOW Legal Defense and Education Fund). In addition, she served on the Board of Directors of Girls Educational & Mentoring Services (GEMS), which helps girls and young women who have experienced commercial sexual exploitation and domestic trafficking.

Samantha's expertise includes generating revenue to strengthen opportunities for women and people of color, and to help organizations increase their visibility and impact. Her personal and professional Blueprint includes empowering women and people of color across generations to find their passions, explore their values and strengths, define their personal and professional goals, create achievable action plans, lead with purpose, and thrive (not just survive) by making healthy lifestyle and professional choices.

Monday, November 14, 12:00-1:00 pm: Join Samantha Erksine for lunch in the Women's Studies Department to learn more about the Imelda Foundation, about founding a nonprofit, and about internship and mentorship opportunities. 1:00-2:30 pm: Following the lunch conversation there will be opportunities for one-on-one meetings to discuss your specific career goals.

Monday, November 14, 4:00-5:00 pm: Join Samantha Erksine at the Career Center where she will discuss careers in nonprofits in general and development/communications in particular. "I will discuss the rewards and frustrations of nonprofit work, what I wish I had learned at the University of Maryland, and what students can do now to unlock their potential and shape their future." 5:00-6:00pm: Following the talk there will be opportunities for one-on-one meetings to discuss your specific career goals.

TRIOTA Seeks Your Nominations

Nominate instructors, mentors, advisors, teaching assistants, staff who've made a difference for you

TRIOTA, the women's studies honor society, will hold its annual Celebration of Feminism in early December to recognize outstanding dedication, service, and support to WMST/LGBT students. All students enrolled in the WMST major or certificate, LGBT certificate or minor, or Black Women's Studies minor are invited to nominate a deserving Professor, Instructor/Lecturer, Adviser, Teaching Assistant, or Staff person -- who has made a difference for you? You can nominate anyone within Women's and LGBT Studies, including those who teach in cross-listed courses.

Please submit your nominations by Friday, November 11, 2016.

The awards will be presented at the Celebration of Feminism in early December. More information on this event will become available in the coming weeks.

If you have any questions, please email TriotaUMD@gmail.com.

Spotlight: Shyra Stevens, Undergraduate Teaching Assistant

Shyra Stevens is a senior majoring in Communications with minors in Black Women's Studies and Innovative Entrepreneurship. This semester Shyra is working as an Undergraduate Teaching Assistant for Professor Barkley Brown's AASP313/WMST314 "Black Women in U.S. History" course.

"I was interested in being a T.A. for this course, which I took in Spring 2015, because I love history but also because it would be an experience that would help me articulate my ideas. It has been interesting to see the responsibilities of a professor. I have had the opportunity to organize several class discussions and through this I am beginning to see the difference between comprehending something myself and understanding it in a way that I am able to really communicate it to others and help them understand. Sometimes it is uncomfortable but it is helping me grow and I know in order to get to my next level I have to be okay with being a little uncomfortable sometimes."

Stevens came to the University of Maryland from her hometown of New Haven, Connecticut. She notes that it took her a little while to decide that going to college was right for her: "High school was rough and when I graduated I did not want any more school so I went to work for several years. Eventually I started taking just a few classes at Gateway Community College in New Haven but initially not thinking of going on for a degree." Her decision to apply to the University of Maryland came as part of a determination to know a world "beyond my 5 mile radius."

That goal also led her to her Summer 2016 Maryland Social Entrepreneur Corps (MSEC) study abroad in Nicaragua where she helped women who were starting small businesses develop skills in basic accounting and marketing. "It was challenging. You talk about a girl who never went camping, and now here I was in a place where often we didn't have running water. It was uncomfortable, hard but good."

Upon graduation in May 2017, Shyra hopes to find a way to join her love of history with her interest in communications and entrepreneurship.

Foundation for Defense of Democracies

Position Type: Internship (Fall or Spring Part-Time)

ID#: 146822

Preferred Class: Junior, Senior, Masters Candidate

Preferred Majors: Arts and Humanities, Behavioral and Social Sciences, Business/Marketing, Journalism, Office of Extended Studies

Job Function: Communication, Creative/Design/Multimedia, Marketing/Sales, Research

Location: Washington, DC

Duration: Spring semester

Hours Per Week: 22

Compensation: Unpaid

Description: The Communications Department is seeking part-time and full-time interns for the spring with an interest in foreign policy, journalism, communications and public relations, social and digital media, web design, and marketing. Interns will experience Washington's fast-paced media environment and see first-hand how policy and media intersect. Interns will monitor the organization's media profile, help draft press releases, craft social media content, assist with coordinating broadcast interviews, market Washington policy events, and many other communications activities. At the end of the term, interns will have developed and diversified their skills to further their careers as reporters, public relations representatives, and Capitol Hill press relations staffers.

Applicants must be hardworking and eager to learn new skills. Strong writing skills desired. Knowledge of Microsoft Office is a must; experience with website content management systems and HTML are desirable but not required. Internship includes a great speaker series, career support and professional skill-building.

The Foundation for Defense of Democracies (FDD) is a nonpartisan policy institute dedicated exclusively to promoting pluralism, defending democratic values, and fighting the ideologies that threaten democracy. The organization was founded shortly after 9/11 by a group of visionary philanthropists and policymakers to engage in the worldwide war of ideas and to support the defense of democratic societies under assault by terrorism and militant Islamism. FDD combines policy research, investigative journalism, strategic communications, and democracy and counterterrorism education. Based in downtown Washington, D.C., the Foundation for Defense of Democracies has a number of spring internship opportunities available. All FDD interns will have the opportunity to participate in a twice-monthly speaker series, which brings high-level DC officials and senior staff members to engage with interns in an intimate setting. FDD interns will be encouraged to build on their academic skills by working closely with senior staff. FDD is also happy to assist students who wish to earn academic credit for this internship.

Qualifications:

- Must be at least a college junior (third year) in good standing
- Must have at least a 3.2 GPA (on a 4.0 scale).
- Should have a relevant course of study and have completed coursework in any of the following fields: International Relations, Security Studies, History, Communications, Journalism, International Economics or Political Science.
- Interns should have knowledge of Microsoft Office programs, including Word, as well as basic Excel skills.
- Must be able to commit to a minimum of 22 hours per week.
- Must be eligible to work in the United States.

Additional Internships and Jobs

The Fund for the Public Interest is a national non-profit organization that works to build support for progressive organizations across the country. This year, the Fund is working with the Human Rights Campaign on a campaign to build public support for the Equality Act, a federal bill that would prohibit discrimination against LGBT people in employment, housing, and education. Right now, people risk being fired or losing their homes in 28 states for being lesbian, gay, or bisexual and in 30 states for being trans.

The Fund is hiring students as paid staff to help with this campaign and with citizen outreach work this fall. As paid campaign staff, students will build grassroots power, learn the building blocks of political organizing, and work closely with senior staff management team. Both part-time and full-time positions available.

Quote of the Week

"All that distinguishes man as an intelligent and accountable being is equally true of woman; and if that government only is just which governs by the free consent of the governed, there can be no reason in the world for denying to women the exercise of the elective franchise, or a hand in making and administering the laws of the land. Our doctrine is that 'right is of no sex.'"

Frederick Douglass
