New Yorker writer Margaret Talbot and movie critic Nell Minow return to Hill Center to celebrate legendary actresses Joan Crawford and Bette Davis who created indelible portraits of what the film historian Jenaine Basinger calls "exaggerated women"- powerful, fiercely yearning, feminine and often furious. As this year's FX miniseries "Feud" reminded us, Crawford and Davis also had a long and spectacular rivalry, born from strong personalities, an attraction to the same larger-than-life roles, a certain amount of savvy publicity- stoking- and Hollywood's treatment of actresses as they get older. Join film critic Nell Minow and New Yorker staff writer Margaret Talbot for a delicious sampling of some of Davis and Crawford's finest performances. Crawford turns in a moving performance as a con artist whose life is transformed after plastic surgery restores her badly scarred face. Hitchcockian, suspenseful and strange, A Woman's Face showcases Crawford at the height of her allure. Directed by George Cukor, with Melvyn Douglas and Conrad Veidt.

LOCATION: Hill Center at the Old Naval Hospital, 921 Pennsylvania Avenue, SE, Washington, DC

TIME: Sunday, October 22, 4:00-6:00pm

Tickets are FREE but required. Please register here.

LOCATION: Art-Sociology 1213

TIME: Monday, October 23, 2:00-3:00 pm

Muslims and The Holocaust: Reconciliation and Hope Tuesday, October 24

Bahá'í Chair for World Peace Lecture

In the world of terrorism and extremism, the image of Jewish, Christian, and Muslim relations has been portrayed as volatile and irreconcilable. However, the many positive and lost stories of reconciliation, rescue, and religious roots have been buried by extremist agendas and media. How is the Holocaust connected to Muslims? Why is this significant in creating a bridge of understanding between Jews and Muslims? How can we acknowledge one another's narratives of suffering at different times in history? Dr. Afridi will shed light on these aspects at a challenging time for religious dialogue and healing. She will discuss the common and shared biblical stories of Jews, Christians, and Muslims; how these relate to the stories of rescue during the Holocaust; and innovative interfaith projects that have brought these traditions together.

Race, Work, and Opportunity in America

Wednesday, October 25

We like to think that the US labor market is a meritocracy - that people who work hard will attain good jobs, climb the career ladder, or start and grow businesses. The experience of Black Americans, however, raises questions about whether the reality lines up with the ideal. The unemployment rate among Black Americans is roughly double that of White Americans, and Black college graduates are roughly twice as likely to be unemployed as White college graduates. Over the past three decades, Black workers have attained higher levels of education and experience, but have not seen a commensurate increases in earnings, benefits, and economic standing. How do we understand the experience of Black workers in the US, and what does it tell us about working in America today?

Spotlight: Triota Officers

Triota is the Women's Studies Honor Society. Meet the leadership team!

Swathi Siva Srinivas

Hi, my name is Swathi Siva Srinivas. I am from Westminster, Maryland and I am a Senior Psychology major and Women's Studies certificate. Currently, I am the President of Triota. After taking a women's studies intro class during my first semester, I knew that I was interested in taking more classes. So far in all the classes I have taken, my interest in women's studies has grown and I intend on working with Triota to learn more from the members and gain a new experience by working hands-on with the issues that we learn in classes and more.

Chioma Agbaraji

Chioma Agbaraji is a senior at the University of Maryland and a native of Prince George's County, Maryland. She has also been a member of Triota since early 2017. This spring she will receive her B.A. in Women's Studies with a minor in Geographic Information Systems and a certificate in Latin American Studies. During her time at UMD, Chioma has worked closely with social enterprises and entrepreneurs, especially during her internship in the Dominican Republic. As a community consultant with Soluciones Comunitarias, she assisted local women entrepreneurs with start-up cost analyses for a candle business and empowerment-building projects. After graduation, Chioma would like to travel and work abroad, ultimately serving as a consultant who promotes institutional inclusion as a means of economic advantage. And when Chioma is not researching ways to leverage women and other minority communities, she enjoys visiting art galleries, traveling, and eating flan de coco.

Jenna Sminkey

I am a math major pursuing an undergraduate certificate in women's studies. This is my last semester at UMD, and I commute on Tuesdays and Thursdays only, so I am not particularly involved with campus activities outside of Triota. However, as I am mathematically inclined, they have entrusted me to be their treasurer this semester.

Anusha Yedla

Hi, I'm Anusha, and I'm a junior General Biology major. I'm Triota's secretary, and I'm also involved in UMD Moksha, UMD American Medical Student Association, and Technica, Maryland's all-women hackathon. In my free time, I love to read, dance, watch cliché movies, and eat Taco Bell.

Apply for Triota, the Women's Studies Honor Society:

The purpose of this organization is to encourage and support scholarship and excellence. Iota Iota Iota is named for the ancient goddesses Inanna, Ishtar, and Isis. We are home Beta Beta Chapter of this organization.

If you are a student who has taken at least one Women's Studies or LGBT Course with GPA of at least 3.0 in women studies or LGBT courses and have a minimum 2.75 cumulative GPA, you are invited to join the Beta Beta Chapter of Iota Iota Iota (Triota). If you are interested in membership, please fill out the application online, along with a copy of your most recent unofficial transcript, semester schedule, and a short essay (250-500 words) about why you want to join Triota or what you like about WMST or LGBT courses.

Applications due November 1st; apply here.

National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws

Position Type: Internship (Fall or Spring Part-Time)

ID#: 165097

Job Function: Social Services

Location: Washington, DC

Duration: One semester

Hours Per Week: 16-32

Compensation: Unpaid

Description: Since its founding in 1970, NORML has provided a voice in the public policy debate for those Americans who oppose marijuana prohibition and favor an end to the practice of arresting marijuana smokers. A nonprofit public-interest advocacy group, NORML represents the interests of the tens of millions of Americans who smoke marijuana responsibly.

During the 1970s, NORML led the successful efforts to decriminalize minor marijuana offenses in 11 states and significantly lower marijuana penalties in all others. Today NORML continues to lead the fight to reform state and federal marijuana laws, whether by voter initiative or through the elected legislatures. NORML serves as an informational resource to the national media on marijuana-related stories, providing a perspective to offset the anti-marijuana propaganda from the government; lobbies state and federal legislators in support of reform legislation; publishes a regular newsletter; hosts, along with the NORML Foundation, an informative web site and an annual conference; and serves as the umbrella group for a national network of citizen-activists committed to ending marijuana prohibition and legalizing marijuana.

Lisura Document Solutions

Position Type: Internship (Fall or Spring Part-Time)

ID#: 164334

Preferred Class: Junior, Senior

Preferred Majors: Arts and Humanities/Communication, Arts and Humanities/Creative Writing (GRAD), Business/Marketing

Job Function: Communication

Location: Crofton, MD

Duration: 135 hours

Hours Per Week: 4-8

Compensation: Unpaid

Description: Gain experience in communications and marketing using the skills you have and will learn to promote our business on the internet through blogs, social media, SEO and other forms of branding. Conduct research that will help to reach those who are looking for what Lisura Document Solutions offers by linking the business consumer to us through information-- information used to identify and define marketing opportunities and problems; generate, refine, and evaluate marketing actions; monitor marketing performance; and improve understanding of the process. Interns research specific information required to address issues related to our products and solutions, directly communicating Lisura's value proposition to the local business community, then enter vital information into our CRM database and communicating any significant findings to management.

*Educational and mentoring plan: By the end of their internship you will have learned at minimum the following 5 skills:

1. CRM Skills - Businesses are also looking for experts in Customer Relationship Management (CRM) software, which serves as an essential tool for virtually any company. CRM software is used to organize and manage customers' various interactions with a company. CRM software helps bridge the gap between sales, marketing, and customer service. Lisura relies on a customized CRM system to deliver results.
2. Lead Nurturing - Companies are increasingly looking to lead nurturing as a vital sales solution. In the B2B world, most customer relationships today begin with a contact, then continue on with lead nurturing through the sales funnel. Lead nurturing is in super high demand, so employees with experience in this area should be sure to note it on their resume's marketing skills list and LinkedIn profiles.
3. EMAIL Marketing - Email marketing isn't new, but it's still one of the most effective ways to market products and services. Newsletter signup boxes are commonplace on nearly all blogs, and brands are hungry for employees who can help them grow, retain, and delight email subscribers. They're looking for employees who understand email lead nurturing. If you can get practice with email marketing, wear this skill like a badge of honor.
4. Consumer Behaviorist - Brands realize that individuals make purchasing decisions based off of their feelings and emotional cues. It's why advertisements like the Budweiser Super Bowl puppy ads are so successful. As businesses seek to amp up the emotional storytelling and strengthen consumer bonds to brands, they want experts who understand consumer behavior and can help figure out what makes their key audiences tick.
5. Teamwork - With social media becoming a driving force in marketing teams supporting these programs are growing by leaps and bounds, so the marketer's ability to work in a team is paramount.

Qualifications: Strong interpersonal skills, works well with a team and is eager to learn.

Excellent writing with the ability to think creatively and lend ideas. Strong research skills leading to logical conclusions.

Application deadline: December 22, 2017

Quote of the Week

"If the occurrence of rape were audible, its decibel level equal to its frequency, it would overpower our days and nights, interrupt our meals, our bedtime stories, howl behind our love-making, an insistent jackhammer of distress. We would demand an end to it. And if we failed to locate its source, we would condemn the whole structure. We would refuse to live under such conditions."

- Patricia Weaver Francisco
